Paul Work

(Third generation descendant of German immigrants)

Overview

- Historical background (why?)
- Introduction
- Getting started
- Bridging the gap (crossing the pond)
- Finding the right information
- Where to go next
- Other German populations

Historical Background

- German immigrants didn't just come from Germany proper
- Many came from German colonies further east (Poland, Russia, Bessarabia, etc.)
- Russia had several enclaves of German settlements: Volga, Crimea, Caucasus, Volhynia)
- Emigrations to these areas occurred in
 - 1775 – 1782 (Western Poland: Poznan, West Prussia)
 - 1780 – 1790 (Volga region of Russia)
 - 1795 – 1806 (Central Poland)
 - 1815 – 1865 (Bessarabia, Caucasus)
 - 1868 – 1875 (Volhynia)
- Large numbers arrived in America between 1880 and 1910 – why?
 - Russia revoked many of the freedoms they had enjoyed beginning in 1880
 - Canadian Pacific Railway sponsored many to settle Western Canada
 - US also had immigration incentives for the Dakotas
- Tracing your ancestry through these areas is even more challenging
 - Church records aren't always available, and in Polish or Russian
 - Even if you find records in the foreign area, you have another jump to make back to Germany proper

• Introduction

- The Good, the Bad, and the Ugly
- Getting started
- Bridging the gap
- Extracting the important information

The Good, the Bad, and the Ugly

- The Good: Germans kept excellent records
 - Records often reach back to the 1500s
 - Microfilms of almost all church records that survived are available
 - Families tended to remain in the same area for long periods of time
- The Bad: It's all in German or Latin
- The Ugly: the handwriting can be incredibly difficult to decipher
 - Written in the old Gothic alphabet
 - Many letters look alike

Getting Started

- Gather known info
 - Birth, marriage and death records
 - Interview living relatives
- Search sources on this side of the “pond”
 - Try to identify when they arrived and where they came from.
Example: my grandmother’s parents
 - Naturalization records: Application and final papers
 - Ellis Island records (<http://www.ellisland.org/>), Passenger lists from other ports of entry
 - Hamburg Passenger Departure Lists 1850-1934 (<http://www.germanroots.com/hamburg.html>)
 - Census records: 1910 and later list country of origin and sometimes town of birth

Bridging the Gap

Once you have a clue, verify the origin by

- List all possible spellings of possible town origins
- Search modern and old atlases for possible towns
 - www.mapquest.de
 - www.kartenmeister.com
 - <http://www.jewishgen.org/communities/loctown.asp>
- Search telephone records for matches between family names and towns
 - Choose a family name that is not very common
 - www.telefonbuch.de
 - Das Örtliche
 - Example: Öschelbronn (Wolf, Erbacher)
- Order microfilm for the target town

Immigrants to the US

Joseph Erbacher Sr.

- Arrived in New York on 24 Feb 1892 on the S.S. Norwegian
- Did not stay, returned to Poland

Joseph Wolf

- Youngest of eight children
- 20 years old when he left Poland
- Arrived in New York on 31 March 1901 on the S.S. Phoenecia

Pauline Erbacher:

- 17 years old when she left Poland
- Could not read or write
- Arrived in New York on 8 May 1902 on the S.S. Patricia
- Stayed with relatives
- Studied to pass the English proficiency test

Finding the information

- You don't need to be fluent in German or Latin
 - Learning the alphabet is crucial
 - Recognizing key words and phrases
- Prior to 1806
 - Minimal information given (name, date, parents names)
 - Churches were often recognized as semi-official civil registries
 - Almost always hand-written
- After 1806, prior to 1871
 - Often hand-written, forms are gradually introduced
 - Includes birthplace on marriage and death records (very useful!)
 - Occupations and residences often included
- After 1871 (German unification)
 - Standesamt (civil registry) for all vital statistics
 - Standard forms, with minimal handwriting
 - Requires proof of relationship for anything less than 100 years
 - Very detailed information available

Finding the information

Poland: some archives are putting records on line

Germany:

• Prior to 1871, two common styles for entry of vital statistics:

– Tabular

- Advantage: Easy to pick out the principle parties
- Disadvantage: not as much space for names or other information

– Paragraph

- Advantage: more space for names, places, handwriting larger
- Disadvantage: sometimes difficult to pick out which name is father, which name is child or other details. It all flows as one long, complex sentence.

• Sometimes parish priests would generate a Family Registry

• Occasionally someone comes from outside the local town, so you begin making the next connection ...

- Birthplace and previous place of residence usually called out for bride and groom in a marriage record as well as residence for the parents of both bride and groom.
- Marriage usually took place in hometown of bride (Württemberg) for first marriages, but the family usually settled in the hometown of the groom
- Looking for the hometown of the wife? Look for godparents' residences

Where to go next

- Search the Family History library for books on your target village: Ortsregister, for example.
 - Family History researchers are active all over Germany
 - Often they have already extracted all entries for a given town and published a book (Ortsregister)
 - More and more of these activities are going on line.
 - The Central Family History Library in Salt Lake City has many of these books in their stacks
 - Example: two of my ancestral villages now have their church records on line and searchable
- Study the events of history and try to figure out how they affected your family
 - The French and the Germans have a long history of conflict: Ex: ancestor listed as “shot by the French” during a time of no known war.
 - Learn about why your ancestors left the home country
 - Polish Partitions, Catherine the Great, settling the plains
- Post about your research on one of the appropriate forums
 - Ancestry.com or your own blog
 - Allows others to find you (via Google, for example) and share their experience
 - Compare notes with other researchers, they can give you additional leads
